This scene shows Willie's true colors. It shows that he really didn't care about any of them and that he had plotted and lied to them from the beginning. The other passengers have gone from hating him to trusting him and in the end every one of them turned on him. This

Life Boat, 1944

Meaning:

Willie, a German soldier hides a compass from the boat bound group. The closeups of the compass, which only the audience and Willie are privileged to see, allow the audience to sympathize with Willie. Once the group finds out about the compass they know they cannot trust him. It is only until Willie is found to have kept water, food, and energy pills from them the whole time that they realized that they must get rid of him.
